NEWS AND COMMENT.

COTTON is beginning to come in more freely.

THE equinox has past, and was not stormy here.

FROST was reported in this vicinity on Sunday morning, 22nd inst.

OUT of 150 replies received by the World's Fair Committee at New York, in response to inquiries sent out as to choice of place for holding the great exposition, 52 favored Washington, 36 Chicago, 34 New York, 18 St. Louis, 10 scattering.

Old John Robinson's ger-r-r-atest and "only strictly moral" show on earth is to delight the people of Selma and all the country round about next Monday, 30th inst. We shouldn't wonder if some of the Fayetteville people went up —— "to see the animals."

THE New York Star (straight out "bully" Democratic) tells the editor of the Philadelphia Press (mean, "pisen" Republican) that if he will promise to keep on living until he sees the Democrats get licked in New Jersey, he will be old enough to call Methuselah "sonny!"

EVA STEELE-PARSON-BRILL-MANN-HAMILTON, the much-married, or, rather, the not much-married, individual who, in a frenzy of jealous passion, recently stabbed her servant at one of the summer resorts in the vicinity of New York, has been sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

FROM all the counties tributary to Fayetteville, from all the neighboring places, from all the towns and cities of the State, from the cities of the north, south, east and west—from "fur and near"—the news is that they are coming by the thousands to see JEFF DAVIS and enjoy the Centennial and the Cumberland Fair.

"MR. LEMON, the pension attorney who was on such good terms with TANNER, seems to have been doing a driving business. It is said that he has 75,000 cases pending, involving fees of over $100,000. He will probably miss the Corporal." This seems to be a case where the "lemon" does the squeezing instead of being squeezed.

"The Norfolk Virginian is on the right track when it warns against negro colonization as the greatest danger to the Democracy of Virginia in the coming election. North Carolina was lost to the Democrats in 1872, by just such a well-worked scheme. Protect your borders and watch the Chesapeake Bay." Our neighbors have a dangerous man to fight in "Boss" MAHONE, who is making a last desperate effort for a retention of power, and who will scruple at nothing to accomplish his ends.

"BUENOS AYRES is constructing the longest horse car line in the world. It will connect Buenos Ayres with other towns and will be 200 miles long, and supplied with passenger coaches, sleeping coaches, freight cars, etc., of the most approved style." If the peripatetic pleasure-seeker gets a ride over the whole route, as on American horse-car lines, by "putting a nickel in the slot," it will be undoubtedly the cheapest riding in the world.

"A pink-strip slip for a ten-cent fare,
A blue-strip slip for a five-cent fare;
Punch, conductor, punch with care,
Punch in the presence of the passengaire."

"THE Philadelphia Record asserts that its city leads all other American cities in twenty particulars. Among them are extent of territory, health, number of homes, miles of paved streets, street railways, park, charities and water front (41 miles)." We have not seen the Record's list of "twenty particulars," but it fails of doing full justice to the "City of Brotherly Love" if it leaves out of the enumeration of "leading articles" ice-cream saloons and the scrubbing house-maids of Walnut Street. The people consume amazing quantities of frozen milk during the heated term, and the water hose plays on the front stoop without ceasing.

"PRESIDENT HARRISON has the ability and statesmanship to master our situation, and it is to be hoped he will find time to come into the South and inform himself. Under the influences which control and inspire him as to the South, he might as well be dealing with the people in Brazil. The offices are a very insignificant item when compared with the great questions involved in the Southern problem." The above is from the Greensboro North State—which has long been the only decent Republican newspaper in North Carolina, and one of the ablest in the South—and, leaving off the first eleven words, is as true as preaching. The great difficulty is that it is a truth which comes too late. The Republican press and leaders have themselves been responsible for the ignorance of the administration and the Northern branch of the party in regard to all matters affecting the interests of the South. This ignorance is now working countless ills and unendurable woes to Southern Republicanism; and, too late, the prominent men of this and other Southern States find themselves "hoisted by their own petard."

A Pretty Romance.

New York Press.]

The young gentleman had just been admitted to the bar had opened an office in this city, and was waiting, Micawber like, for something to turn up. He was engaged to a young lady whose beauty and true worth were not to be equaled, in his estimation, either in this country or in Europe. She had once been wealthy, and at that time had moved in that social circle known to fame as "McAllister's Four Hundred." Her reduced circumstances, however, had brought her to the circle in which she met and won the love of the struggling young barrister. His sense of honor was of the finest—perhaps too fine—and he congratulated himself that she was no longer an heiress, for had she been she would not have become his fiancee. And he was sure that his finer feelings would never permit him to "marry money." For this reason he was anxious to make a start in his chosen profession which would enable him to hasten the happy day. His first client enabled him to do this, but had not this initial case been a long time in coming there never would have been occasion to chronicle this romance.

To cut a long story short, the young lady, through the death of a distant and almost unknown relative, fell heir to a property larger than that originally possessed. The young man, true to his sense of honor, gave her her freedom in a short note, although the act cost him a great pang. This brought from the young lady a longer note, asking him to reconsider his action and requesting an interview. He thanked her by post for her kindness, and told her that as an equal in wealth he would have been honored by a union with her, but that she was now in a position to make a much more desirable alliance. The days that followed this generous renunciation of wealth and happiness were sad ones for the young lawyer, made doubly so by the fact that they were spent in solitude in his office, uninterrupted by clients. About a week after breaking off his engagement the young man was startled by the appearance in his office of the girl he had given up. She smiled beamingly upon him and said:

"If you will not marry me let us at any rate be friends. I need the advice of counsel in a suit which I am about to bring, and for the sake of old times I hope you will do your best for me."

"By all means," replied the astonished disciple of Blackstone. "If you will give me the facts of the case I will attend to it at once."

"I wish to bring a suit for damages for breach of promise against ——. I would not do this, only I know he loves me still, and will not marry me because he thinks I can and want to do better."

It is needles to say the case was compromised and never brought into court.

Sebastian Gomez, the Painter.

Sebastian Gomez was a mulatto boy, employed in the studio of Murillo, the great Spanish painter. He and his father were both slaves. He slept in the studio at night, and, after all the others were gone, painted. A wonderful picture of the Virgin was found there one morning, at sight of which Murillo was lost in admiration, but no one could tell by whom it was done, No one suspected the slave mulatto boy, One night Sebastian became so entranced with his painting that he continued until morning, when Murillo entered the studio and found him at work. Murillo, entranced with the picture, promised the slave boy whatever he would ask.

At these words Sebastian uttered a cry of joy, and, raising his eyes to his master, said:

"The freedom of my father! the freedom of my father!"

"And thine also," said Murillo, who, no longer able to conceal his emotion, threw his arms around Sebastian, and pressed him to his breast.

"Your pencil," he continued, "shows that you heve talent; your request shows that you have a heart. From this day consider yourself not only my pupil, but as my son. I have done more than paint —I have made a painter."

Murillo kept his word, and Sebastian Gomez, better known under the name of the "Mulatto of Murillo," became one of the most celebrated painters in Spain. There may yet be seen in the churches of Seville the celebrated picture which he had been found painting by his master; also at St. Anne, admirably done, a holy Joseph, which is extremely beautiful; and others of the highest merit.

Business Improvement.

Boston Journal.]

There is a decided improvement in nearly every department of business, and the outlook for the fall and winter is most cheering. The improvement does not rest upon mere hopes or conjectures, but upon the solid foundation of abundant crops and an excellent foreign demand for whatever surplus we may have to dispose of. Good crops signify an immediate increase in the purchasing capacity and inclination of large masses of our population; they also stand for an increase in railroad traffic, which, materializing later in long-desired dividends, is as good as an elixir of life to discouraged investors.

"Kissing Mother."

Eli Perkins.]

A father, talking to his careless daughter, said:

"I want to speak to you of your mother. It may be that you have noticed a careworn look upon her face. Of course, it has not been brought there by any act of yours; still it is your duty to chase it away. I want you to get up to-morrow morning and get breakfast; and when your mother comes and begins to express her surprise, go right up to her and kiss her on the mouth. You can't imagine how it will brighten her dear face.

"Besides, you owe her a kiss or two. Away back, when you were a little girl, she kissed you when no one else was tempted by your fever-tainted breath and swollen face. You were not as attractive then as you are now. And through those years of childish sunshine and shadows she was always ready to cure, by the magic of a mother's kiss, the little, dirty, chubby hands whenever they were injured in those first skirmishes with the rough old world.

"And then the midnight kisses with which she routed so many bad dreams, as she leaned above your restless pillow, have all been on interest these long, long years.

"Of course, she is not so pretty and kissable as you are; but if you had done your share of the work during the last ten years the contrast would not be so marked.

"Her face has more wrinkles than yours, and yet, if you were sick, that face would appear far more beautiful than an angel's as it hovered over you, watching every opportunity to minister to your comfort, and every one of those wrinkles would seem to be bright wavelets of sunshine chashing each other over the dear face.

"She will leave you one of these days. These burdens, if not lifted from her shoulders, will break her down. Those rough, hard hands, which have done so many necessary things for you, will be crossed upon her lifeless breast. Those neglected lips which gave you your first baby kiss will be forever closed, and those sad, tired eyes will have opened in eternity, and then you will appreciate your mother; but it will be too late."

A Man-Eating Tigress.

India Correspondent English Mechanic.]

The notorious Jounsar man-eating tigress has at last been killed by a young forest officer. The tigress has been the scourge of the neighborhood of Chakrata for the last ten years, and her victims have been innumerable. On one occasion she seized one out of a number of foresters who were sleeping together in a hut, carried him off, and deliberately made him over to her cubs to play with, while she protected their innocent gambols from being disturbed. His compaaions were eventually forced to take refuge in a tree from her savage attacks. Here they witnessed the following ghastly tragedy.

The tigress went back and stood over the prostrate form of her victim, and purred in a cat-like and self-complacent way to her cubs, who were romping about and rolling over the apparently lifeless body. She then lay down a few yards off, and with blinking eyes watched the gambols of her young progeny. In a few moments the man sat up and tried to beat the young brutes off. They were too young to hold him down, so he made a desperate attempt to shake himself free, and started off at a run; but before he had gone twenty yards the tigress bounded out and brought him back to her cubs. Once more the doomed wretch had to defend himself over again from their playful attacks. He made renewed attempts to regain his freedom, but was seized by the old tigress and brought back each time before he had gone many yards. His groans and cries for help were heart-rending; but the men on the tree were paralyzed with fear, and quite unable to move.

At last the tigress herself joined in the gambols of her cubs, and the wretched man was thrown about and tossed over her head exactly as many of us have seen our domestic cat throw rats and mice about before beginning to feed on them. The man's efforts at escape grew feebler. For the last time they saw him try to get away on his hands and knees toward a large fir tree, with the cubs clinging to his limbs. This final attempt was futile as the rest. The tigress brought him back once again, and then held him down under her forepaws, and deliberately began her living meal before their eyes.

Finishing the Sentence.

"No George," faltered the maiden, "I fear it cannot be. I admire you as a gentleman, I respect you as a friend, but—" "Laura!" he exclaimed, "before you pass sentence hear me out. A recent lucky stroke in business has enabled me to buy a beautiful home on Prairie Avenue, which shall be in your name. I will insure my life for $25,000, and—" "George," calmly interposed the lovely girl, "you interrupted. I was about to say that the sentiments of respect and esteem I feel for you, though so strong, are feeble in comparison with the deep love which—which I—which I have long—don't, George, dear!" For George had interrupted her again.

Wedding Cake to Suit.

"It is customary, nowadays," said a pretty bakery girl, "to have the materials of the wedding cake harmonize with the calling of the bridegroom. For a musician, now, we have an oat cake; for a man who has no calling, and who lives upon his friends, the sponge cake; for a newspaper paragrapher, spice cake, and so on. What is your calling, please?" "I'm a pugilist." "Then you want a pound cake."

"I s'pose you like customers to pay as they go," said a suspicious party as he registered his name. "Yes," replied the hotel clerk, "if they've got baggage; if they haven't, we like them to pay as they come. Two dollars, please."

"Arthur," said a good-natured father to his 'young hopeful,' "I did not know till to-day that you were whipped at school last week."

"Didn't you, pa?" replied the 'young hopeful,' "I knew it."

Pleasant People.

Says Thackeray about that nice boy, Clive Newcome, "I don't know that Clive was especially brilliant, but he was pleasant." Occasionally we meet people to whom it seems to come natural to be pleasant; such are as welcome wherever they go as flowers in May, and the most charming thing about them is that they help to make others pleasant, too.

The other morning we were in the midst of a three days' rain. The fire smoked, the dining room was chilly, and when we assembled for breakfast papa looked rather grim, and mama tired, for the baby had been restless all night. Polly was inclined to fretfulness, and Bridget was undeniably cross, when Jack came in with the breakfast rolls from the baker's. He had taken off his overshoes and rubber-coat in the entry, and came in rosy and smiling.

"Here's the paper, sir," said he to his father, in such a pleasant tone that his father's brow relaxed, and he replied, "Ah, Jack, thank you," quite pleasantly.

His mother looked up at him smiling, and he just touched her cheek gently as he passed.

"Top of the morning to you, Pollywog," he said to his little sister, and delivered the rolls to Bridget with "Here you are, Bridget. Aren't you sorry you didn't go yourself this beautiful day?"

He gave the fire a poke, and opened a damper; the smoke ceased, and presently the coals began to glow—and five minutes after Jack came in we had gathered round the table, and were eating our oatmeal as cheerily as possible. This seems very simple in the telling, and Jack never knew he had done anything at all, but he had, in fact, changed the whole moral atmosphere of the room, and had started a gloomy day pleasantly for five people.

And I thought, Why isn't it a disposition worth cultivating? Isn't it one's duty to be pleasant, just as much as to be honest, or truthful, or industrious, or generous? And yet, while there are many honest, truthful, industrious and generous souls in the world, and people who are unselfish, too, after a fashion, a person who is habitually pleasant is rather a rarity.

But the beauty of it is, as I said before, that pleasantness is catching, and such persons will find themselves in the midst of a world full of bright and happy people, where everyone is as good-natured and contented as they are.

Old Acquaintances.

Among the visitors from the South in New York, during the Centennial celebration, was a gentleman on the staff of the Governor of Virginia. He had written to a friend to engage a horse for him to ride during his stay in New York. A white horse, high-stepping and slender-limbed, was selected, and on the morning appointed was led, in company with a coal-black steed, to the spot where the Virginia gentleman and a friend were ready to mount and join the procession. The latter sprang upon the black horse, when lo! he pawed the ground, shook his head, showed great uneasiness, and altogether behaved so remarkably as to attract general attention.

"As sure as I live," said the Virginian, after swinging himself into the saddle of the white horse, "you are mounted on 'Black Diamond,' my own old horse!"

"Nonsense!" said the other equestrian; "you wouldn't know 'Black Diamond' now, and he wouldn't know you."

By this time a little throng of spectators had gathered, interested in the scene. The saddle of "Black Diamond" was taken off, and under it was found an old scar and a little tuft of white hair, which established his identity beyond a doubt. When his old master mounted him the horse fairly quivered with delight, and uttered a cry of gladness. All through the Centennial week there were two very happy beings together—"Black Diamond" and his rider.

A horse sometimes shows intelligence so nearly human that one cannot but be glad when a great pleasure falls into the life of this faithful friend of man.

Moore County Brown-Stone.

Carthage Blade.]

Experts who were here last week, looking after the purchase of the brown-stone quarries near this place, pronounce the stone on Mr. J. McL. Kelly's land superior to any they have seen in any part of the United States for buil ling purposes. They say that this stone will sell for as much as marble, and is more fashionable and therefore in greater demand. We are led to believe that the work of getting out this stone will begin in a short time, as a stock company is being formed for this purpose. the supply is almost inexhaustible. Mr. Kelly says that it would take 500 men 1,000 years to quarry the stone on his place alone. These figures sound extravagant, but he says that they are true.

Hurrah for Moore county! She contains the best brown-stone in the United States, and a thousand years' supply—all within two miles and a half of Carthage.

Georgia Farmers Prospering.

One of the editors who went on the Georgia farmers' and editors' excursion to Ohio writes the Atlanta Constitution that nine-tenths of the farms in Ohio are mortgaged, while in Georgia not more than one-third of the farmers are in the same condition. The writer calls attention to the fact that twenty-five years ago the Georgia farmers lost nearly if not quite $400,000,000 property, but they did not by any means give up the struggle. They went to work energetically to recoup themselves, and to-day the farmers of that State, as a class, are prosperous, and becoming more so year by year.

LYNCH LAW.

Our conscience acquits us of any remissness in the performance of our duty as journalists in dealing with the question of mob violence. More than once this writer has felt impelled to depreeate in strong and unmeasured terms that criminal impatience which snatches the malefactor out of the custody of the law, and substitutes the hideous mask, the improvised noose and the swinging limb for the slower but safer machinery of the courts of justice.

A resort to lynch law can never be justified—it may be excused. The absolutely certain commission of that nameless and revolting crime—which crushes peace and joy forever out of a fair young life, besmirches spotless fame, and in a blighted home stirs the fountain of bitter tears which none of this life's consolations can ever dry—starts the pulses of indignant manhood at fever heat, transforms the quiet citizen into the stern avenger, and sets the whole community in arms to rid the earth of the wretch who cumbers it—the fiend whose very life is an offense against God and humanity.

Murder, arson and burglary are fearful offenses against the well-being of society, meriting, in most instances, the extreme penalty of the gibbet, or, at the least, years or a lifetime of imprisonment; but even such crimes as these do not visit upon their perpetrators the unutterable horror with which an outraged community pursues the brute whose relentless lust carries with it calamity far worse than death. Him the human heart's first burst of natural rage ushers, "full of bread and wine, all unassoiled," into the presence of his Maker.

The frequency of lynch law has beyond doubt grown out of the abuses which have crept into the jury system and the wofully defective administration of the plain written law in the courts. So often have atrocious, red-handed criminals gone "unwhipt of justice," through worse than the law's legitimate delays—through unwarranted verdicts, sentences of mistaken mercy, transparent pleas of insanity, and extraordinary efforts of counsel in the face of indisputable evidence of guilt—that public sentiment has been educated to remarkable leniency of the violence of irresponsible bands of men. But not even these legal abuses and evils can justify the taking of human life without the form of trial—condemning a man to death, confronted by the ghastly mystery of shrouded faces and stern, immovable forms, with hardly time for the utterance of a prayer or a sigh of repentance.

The recent lynching of Stack and Boone in the immediate vicinity of Morganton, in Burke county, seems to have been an instance of flagrant and inexcusable cruelty and lawlessness (at least with Stack, for his case has overshadowed that of the poor, wretched negro, Boone). Stack, who had never been brought to trial, was charged with the murder of a man named Parker, and, so far as we have been able to learn, the evidence against him was purely circumstantial. The neighbors about his home in Union county give him the character of an honest, law-abiding citizen, and an indignation meeting reeently held at Monroe denounces the actors in his death in terms of strongest reprobation. It is possible that an awful mistake was made the other night at Morganton, and that an innocent man has been slain by violent hands.

It is to be hoped that His Excellency Gov. Fowle's mild—exceedingly mild—proclamation will put a better state of feeling into the minds of those who spurn the deliberate movements of bench, bar and jury; and the good citizens of Burke county can aid in bringing about this desired result by endorsing the Monroe meeting, and by doing everything in their power to bring the perpetrators of the deed to punishment.

COUNTY INSTITUTES.

Superintendent of Public Instruction, Maj. Finger, has announced dates for county institutes for Caswell, Person, Granville, Vance, Chatham and Moore to be held by Prof. McIver, and for Graham, Orange, Richmond, Robeson, Cumberland, Harnett to be held by Prof. Alderman.

The date for Cumberland County Institute has been fixed for November 4th, to continue one week. The law requires that every teacher in the county attend promptly. This will entail a loss of one week to every child throughout the county in attendance at school, and we learn that a strong protest will be entered against having the Institute at the time above mentioned. The summer season, during the vacation, is the season for all such side-shows.

THE VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN.

The opening of the Virginia campaign by Mahone, the "Little Czar" of the Republican party in that State, demonstrates clearly that in his own mind he is leading a "forlorn hope." He seeks to divide the people by the discussion of abstruse economic questions. They are not to be drawn away from the paramount isssues before them:—the honest and frugal administration of their State government and the final elimination of "bossism" from State politics. For the rest, he depends on the unimpaired solidity of the negro vote by the lavish use of the "campaign fund," and, last but not least, by wholesale colonization and by the importation of "floaters" from adjoining States.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

List of Active and Associate Members.

It was stated in the OBSERVER two weeks ago that the roll of membership of the Young Men's Christian Association would be published.

Should there be any member of the Association whose name does not appear on this roll, and who has not been seen by committee, it has not been intentionally left off, and all such will please see either the General Secretary or the Recording Secretary, Mr. A. Pull for the Centennial Celebration in Fayetteville Nov. 20th. 21st and 22nd, 1889.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. J. C. Carson, of Bennettsville, S. C., was in town this week.

Capt. Jos. C. Huske has accepted a position with the C. F. & Y. V. R. R.

Mr. R. Frank Peterson, formerly of Fayetteville. and now residing at Concord, N. C., is visiting the city.

Mr. Norman Smith has taken a position with the mammoth wholesale and retail grocery of R. M. Nimocks.

Misses Mittie Matthews, Mollie Vann and Loula Steele, three charming young ladies, have accepted positions with Mr. Frank Thornton.

Mr. Paul Smith, of the Atlantic Coas Line Engineering Department, is paying a visit to his old home—looking as well and handsome as ever.

Hon. Thos. H. Sutton returned Saturday from a trip to New York, and he states that the sounding "boom" of the Fayetteville Centennial has reached even that great metropolis.

Mr. Geo. P. McNeill, lay delegate from the church of this city, is attending Fayetteville Presbytery at St. Paul's, and quite a number went down to the Sunday School Convention in session this week.

Mr. Isaac Murchison, of Harnett, was here Tuesday, on his way to Seattle, Washington Territory, whither he goes to make his future home. He will inform the readers of the OBSERVER of the country and his trip.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Thomson have returned from Blowing Rock, where they have been enjoying mountain air, fare and scenery for the past few weeks. We are rejoiced to know that Mr. and Mrs. Thomson have greatly improved in health.

Mr. Sam'l Haas, of Norfolk, now general manager of the extensive clothing establishment of Mr. Geo. Rosenthal, on Hay street, will, we are glad to learn, make his residence in this city, Mrs. Haas and family joining him here in a short time—to whom we extend a cordial welcome.

Mr. W. J. Crosswell, Superintendent of this division of the Southern Express Company, with headquarters at Wilmington, made a business trip of a few hours to Fayetteville last week. He doubtless found the condition of affairs gratifying at this point, for Mr. Howell, the efficient manager, has been making things hum with large shipments of fruit, etc.

A Proclamation by the Governor.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

WHEREAS, information has been received by this department that recently, in certain counties in this State, evil-minded and lawless men have banded themselves together, and under the cover of darkness and disguises, have terrorized and assaulted the officers of the law, broken open prisons, violently taken therefrom persons who were held in custody to await the trial guaranteed by the Constitution to every citizen accused of crime, and murdered them;

And whereas, the perpetrators of crimes so conceal themselves that their names and present whereabouts have not been discovered, and thereby they have so far escaped arrest and punishment;

And whereas, the growing frequency of these crimes and the apparent immunity from punishment of their perpetrators has caused grave apprehension among the intelligent and virtuous citizens of the State, and have brought great scandal and disgrace upon our community:

Now therefore I, Daniel G. Fowle, Governor of the State of North Carolina, do issue this my proclamation, enjoining all officers, and especially those charged with the administration and execution of the laws in the localities where the offences mentioned have been committed, to energetically exert themselves to arrest and bring to justice these offenders against the stability of society. The laws must and shall be maintained. The Executive is ready to exercise all the powers conferred upon him, including the offering of rewards and the employment of special agencies, to preserve the peace of society and protect the good name of the people of the State.

While it is a cause for profound sorrow that these evils should have any existence within our borders, there is some consolation found in the fact that they are confined to very few and restricted localities. The great body of the people are sober, industrious and law-abiding. They have ever been remarkably distinguished among the States of the Union for reverence for the law and steady support of its ministers. To this people I appeal to aid me and their other servants in suppressing the evils referred to. A sound public sentiment, making itself heard and felt fearlessly on all proper occasions, will not only greatly encourage those who are charged with the difficult and often dangerous duty of executing the laws, but will soon so impress the criminals themselves that they will not dare attempt to accomplish their wicked and dangerous purposes.

Done at our city of Raleigh this the 17th day of September, A. D., 1889, and in the 114th year of American Independence.

By the Governor.

DANIEL G. FOWLE.

LEAK.—At 2 P. M. on Tuesday, 24th inst., JOHN MURCHISON LEAK, infant son of Walter F. Leak. "It is well with the child." Jesus, who takes little children unto Himself, has received him, and the angel mother, whose sheltering arms relinquished him to earth for but a little while.

"My Lord hath need of these flowrets gay,"
The Reaper said, and smiled:—
"Dear tokens of the earth are they,
Where He was once a child."

MALLOY—Near Starling's Bridge, N. C., September 23rd, 1889, SUSAN ELLEN, wife of J. D. C. Malloy, aged 23 years. Mrs. Malloy was a faithful member of the Baptist Church at Antioch, and in the beautiful grove where the joy of faith in Christ was first revealed to her, we laid her in the grave, there to rest till the resurrection morn.

While friends were near her weeping,
We laid her gently down;
Though cold her form lies sleeping,
Sweet angels watch around. H.

THE INCURABLE CURED.

A Remarkable Statement from a Well-known Citizen of South Carolina.

Cancer is hereditary in my family, an aunt on each side having died from this dreadful disease. In each instance the cancer was located in identically the same position in which mine first made its appearance—just below the left eye and extending down the left cheek bone and nose. I was attended by the best physicians, but the case continued to grow worse under their treatment, and no hope of a cure could be given by them; they said: "I had better have my affairs for this life and the next arranged, for the cancer was liable to strike a vital organ at any moment, and at once bleed me to death." About this time, 1886, I met with Mr. Shirley, living near Due West, whose cancer was being rapidly cured by using Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I then gave up the doctors and all medicines I had heretofore been using, and commenced taking S. S. S., and after using the third bottle I discovered that the scab had fallen off, and that those sharp darting pains, so characteristic of the cancer, had ceased, and the discharge was very profuse. In a few days it began to heal rapidly, and soon dried up. By the time I had exhausted the fifth bottle there was nothing left but the scar where the cancer had been, and I was a well man. The cure effected in my case is considered by my neighbors a most remarkable one, and clearly demonstrates the fact that S. S. S. DOES CURE CANCER. Swift's Specific is a boon to suffering humanity, and all I ask is that those afflicted with cancer give it a trial, and like myself be convinced of its virtue.

The World Moves!

Get Up and Ride!!

When the Big Guns in the Dry Goods trade, who are supposed to buy their goods on long time, insist on selling everything to everybody for strict cash, we think it is time for us heathen, who have to pay cash and cash only for our goods before we can ever see them, to follow in their illustrious footsteps.

It is a well-known fact that all dealers in Grain are compelled by the commercial law of the times to pay for their supplies before they can get them, however much such dealers may be worth, or however they may be.

We have decided therefore to adopt the same rule in selling that we have to abide by in buying. In our case, this should always have been the rule. The unbusiness-like methods of others being our only excuse for wrong-doing, we trust that all of our patrons will "catch on" to the "new departure," and show their appreciation of our endeavors in the past to please them, by continuing to give us their patronage.

Recollect that we sell you

We also hold that to endeavor to do a

SUPPLEMENT TO OBSERVER.

Roslin Items.

Reported for the Observer.]

Please correct mistake you made in giving the address of your correspondent, J. G. Fisher, at Willis' Creek. It should be at Roslin.

Mrs. Martha Brown, wife of Mr. J. R. Brown, departed this life September 5th, in her 51st year. She leaves a husband, one son and one daughter, with a large circle of relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. She was a member of Rockfish Presbyterian Church. In the absence of her pastor, Rev. J. S. Black, her funeral was preached by Rev. J. G. Fisher, of the Baptist Church. North Carolina Presbyterian and Robesonian please copy.

It was the privilege of this scribe to baptise nine persons in South River last Sabbath, as the result of a few days' preaching, during which time it was also my privilege to visit Mr. Fleet Cooper, of Shepherd, N. C., who in many respects is a remarkable man. He was born in 1816, joined the Free Masons in 1837, and is now the only one of his Lodge living who were members at the time of his entering. He has been a man of wonderfully good health, having never known what the headache is. He has not been sick a day in forty years, except a light attack of chills as the result of a trip to Wilmington in 1852. He says when he was a boy there were very few in his neighborhood who could write their names. Now they have within a few miles of him three high schools that are first class schools and doing well. Mr. Cooper is the father of Mr. Fleet Rose Cooper, of Clinton, N. C., and, like many others of Sampson's sons, knows just how to make a visitor feel at home when at his house.

Fodder is about through, and cotton-picking, pea-picking and syrup-making seem to be the order of the day.

One thing that our Legislators and Board of Education should leave entirely with the people is the time of beginning schools, as the people of the different sections know better what time suits them than any one else. Let the School Committees, with the Superintendent, see that the children's money is not spent for charts at three times their worth, as has been done in some counties.

Mr. W. E. Cameron, of Richmond county, is visiting friends about here.

Miss Florence Cameron, of Hope Mills, who has been visiting relatives and friends near this place, returned home last Saturday.

Messrs. McDiarmid Bros. have a new saw mill of large size, put up by the Lane Manufacturing Company, Montpelier, Vt., and the only reason the saw is not cutting all the time is that they do not keep it running, and logs for it to cut. The logs go into the mill at one end and come out at the other, in good lumber cut to the same thickness, as they set to a gauge, which makes all their lumber of a uniform thickness. They have a mill which they have been using for some time which is in good order, but was not heavy enough to do the work that increase of their lumber trade called for.

Mr. Brown and family moved away from here last week.

Your correspondent was shown an apple a day or two ago which measured twelve inches in circumference, and weighed sixteen ounces. It grew on the farm of Mr. Duncan A. McLean, Sr., about one mile from here.

Diphtheria is still among us, but, thanks to the skill of Drs. McDougald and McKinnon, it is fast being conquered. But two cases remain, and those, we learn, are improving.

Dr. Haigh, from your town, was here today.

Mr. H. C. Gadsby, we learn, will soon occupy his magnificent dwelling on the hill, and shall have a serenade.

We learn that Mr. Greenlee, the late weaver boss of this place, has accepted a position with the High Point Manufacturing Co. Mr. Greenlee goes into his new field of labor with the best wishes of this entire community. Prior to his departure, the little children of the Union Sunday School presented him a magnificent Bible; the young ladies and gentlemen of the weaving department presented him with a handsome ring and vest chain, which showed their appreciation of his services, both as an Overseer and Sunday School Superintendent.

Items from Lumber Bridge.

Reported for the Observer.]

The absorbing incidents of our place now are the great revival and the Sunday School Convention. Last Friday night Rev. R. A. Shaw, of Carthage, who is here assisting the Pastor, Rev. A McQueen, began a series of sermons, and has been preaching nightly and daily ever since. A most glorious revival is the result, and the good work is still going on. Old christians are becoming rededicated, backsliders are reclaimed, and sinners are converted. Old and young, large and small, learned and unlearned, are swept by this great tidal-wave of spiritual blessings. Mr. Sh w is a second Pearson, and reminds one very much of the great Evangelist in style, in manner of illustrating and in presenting ideas. This writer has heard Mr. Shaw preach seven consecutive sermons, and does not hesitate to say—and he voices the general sentiment—in declaring that Mr. Shaw is one of our greatest preachers, and a born evangelist.

Rev. Mr. McQueen, of Swann's Station, arrived this afternoon. To-morrow the Convention will begin. It is now raining heavily. To-morrow and next day will be occupied by the Convention; Thursday and Friday by Presbytery at St. Paul's. Preaching here will continue and the good work go on.

Lumber Bridge High School has suspended two days for the convention, and the principal is happy over the great interest his pupils are taking in the revival. Nearly all who were not christians have professed or are seekers. What a model school it will be with all its pupils christians!

Rev. Mr. Law, of Lumberton, will preach the opening sermon to-morrow. Able addresses on important subjects by eminent speakers will be delivered during the time.

Other important news crowded out for want of space.

Night Freight.

To meet the demands of its largely-increasing traffic and transportation, a night freight train has been put on the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway.

Brought Up for Repairs.

A railway engine was brought up from Alma the other day, to be repaired at the works of Messrs. Sutton & Henzi. It is truly a small pattern of a locomotive, and would look like an engine in miniature alongside some of the "jumbos" on the two railroad lines here.

The Cumberland Mills.

Making us a pleasant call last Saturday, Mr. N. F. Holmes, of Beaver Creek (who, by the way, put up the first power printing-press ever brought to this place), informed us that Cumberland Mills were never better prepared for good work and plenty of it. Improvements to the extent of $1,000 or more have recently been made in new dam, flood-gates, etc., and the factory is running on full time.

Religious Notes.

Rev. Joseph Wheeler, having returned from his summer vacation, filled his pulpit in the Methodist Church last Sunday, and preached a good sermon to a large congregation of his people.

Rev. T. P. Barclay, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this city, will be absent from his pulpit next Sunday in attendance on Fayetteville Presbytery, which is now in session at St. Paul's.

Divine services were held in the Catholic Church last Sunday, Rev. Father Francis, of Greensboro, officiating.

Fire.

Fire broke out on the first floor of the dwelling occupied by Capt. R. H. Tomlinson, on South Gillespie Street, last Tuesday morning at about 1 o'clock; and, notwithstanding the efforts of the fire department and the considerable crowd which the alarm bells had hurried to the scene, the building was entirely destroyed. But little of Capt. Tomlinson's household effects—with the exception of the piano and some parlor furniture—was saved.

The building was owned by Geo. Williams, and was insured for $1,000.

Sunday School Services.

Mr. Geo. P. McNeill, of this city, is to conduct the Union Sunday School services of McPherson and other Churches on Sunday next, 29th inst.—the exercises to commence at 3 o'clock, P. M.

With the ripe experience of years in this fertile field of his Master's service, and with heart thoroughly devoted to the great work, Mr. McNeill is accomplishing a world of good in the promotion of Sunday School progress. His excellent addresses delight his audiences, while his own enthusiasm inspires the hearts of his hearers.

Didn't Recognize the Chirography.

A very clever friend of ours—a good farmer, but who has had little familiarity with Dr. Norvin Green's electric wires—was in town the other day; and, while standing at the corner of the Hotel LaFayette building, he was approached by the office errand-boy, who handed him a telegram from a station on the railroad. Pondering over it long and seriously, he finally handed it to an acquaintance at his side, with the remark: "Well, I'll do what it says, but I don't know about it—it's got Bill's signature, but I'll be d—d if it's his handwriting!"

Improvements.

Capt. Jno. B. Broadfoot is having his dwelling on Haymount remodeled, and the architectural plans submitted and adopted will make this already valuable residence one of the most beautiful and desirable of the city or suburbs.

The dwelling in process of construction by Mr. D. H. Ray, on Hay Street, just west of the railroad, is nearly completed, and will make a convenient and attractive residence.

Mr. Walter Watson is having made a handsome stucco wall enclosing his beautiful place at the foot of Haymount.

Capt. Muse, of the Wilson Short Cut R. R., has recently purchased and greatly improved the Baldwin place on West and Row Street, making it one of the handsomest and most desirable pieces of property in the city.

Good Work.

The handsome McCaskill building at Maxton is nearing completion, and we are informed that the roofing, guttering, etc., which was done by Mr. W. M. Lockamy, of this city, is a model job. Mr. Lockamy did the same work on the Hope Mills factory—a standing advertisement of his skill as an artisan.

The Farmers' Exchange.

The Farmers' Exchange, Messrs. J. & O. Evans publishers, made its first visit to our people yesterday morning:—a 28 column weekly paper, of clear print, neat, careful typographic make-up and bright, newsy original and selected matter, evincing skill, pains and ability from the editorial sanctum to the press-room. It starts deserving of popular favor, and will doubtless secure it.

An "Arkansaw Traveler."

Mr. Geo. W. Wightman departed on Tuesday morning last, via the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, for Pine Bluff, Ark., where he is to take a position with Messrs. J. B. Spears & Co., cotton commission merchants. Of unexceptionable moral character and yet in early manhood, Mr. Wightman has again and again been honored with positions of trust and responsibility, discharging their every duty to his own great credit and the satisfaction of his employers. We hope and believe that a bright business career lies before him, which will do much to ameliorate the regret felt by his friends at his departure from the community.

The Fayetteville Cotton Mills.

The complete rehabilitation of the Fayetteville Cotton Mills—after the serious loss sustained by the company from the disastrous cloud-burst and freshet of July 29th—is a matter of sincere congratulation by the whole community. It is an enterprise inaugurated mainly by home capital, sustained by home energy, and managed by home talent—and, best of all, the elements of the corporation are mostly from the younger business men of this city.

The company has lately put in a Corliss engine and boiler, thus adding 100 horse-power to the capacity of the mill, and giving it one of the most complete and powerful "plants" in the State. It is the intention to run the mills hereafter night and day.

Mr. W. F. Holmes, late of the Bluff Mills on Beaver Creek, has been elected Superintendent of the Fayetteville Cotton Mills—an expert in his calling, thoroughly conversant with all the mechanical details of factory operations, and, in a word, admirably fitted for the position.

Appreciating Newspaper Enterprise.

For two weeks or more the press of advertising in the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER has been such that it has been obliged to run six pages instead of four. This means that Fayetteville appreciates a good thing and is willing to support it; in consequence, Mr. Whitehead is enabled to give them the "good thing." We are glad to see the improvement in the OBSERVER, and predict for it a prosperous future under its present management.—Jonesboro Leader.

The above is one of the many notices the advertising in the OBSERVER of late has elicited from the press, and shows that our people of Fayetteville, in bestowing their patronage upon their home paper, are doubly paid:—first by reason of the benefits accruing from a judicious use of printer's ink, and second by reason of the attention it is attracting at a distance. A gentleman remarked to us the other day on the cars: "if your paper is a correct mirror of your town, old Fayetteville is making as substantial progress as any town in the State. Your business men are fast waking up, and no better sign of this fact is visible than the columns of the OBSERVER."

"The Daughter of the Southern Confederacy."

While we do honor to ex-President Davis, the great leader of the Southern people, who counseled, sustained and upheld them in the travail of the supreme hour of their trial and suffering, we pay homage to the lovely "daughter of the Confederacy," whose childhood expanded amid the bright hopes and brilliant achievements of the great cause—whose youth and womanhood have rounded to perfection amid a people grandest in defeat. Under God's sunlight 20,000 voices will be raised to greet the father's gray hairs and bent form; where "bright the lamps shine o'er fair women and brave men" we'll welcome the daughter to the circle of our fair maids and matrons, and to the chivalric services of our gallant men.

The Centennial ball in honor of Miss Winnie Davis will be one of the most imposing and attractive features of the great occasion; and the young men of the city are urgently requested to meet in the Town Hall at 8 o'clock this evening, for the purpose of making suitable arrangements for the event.

A Venerable Citizen of Quwhiffle Township.

Mr. John McDuffie—mentioning the fact that on the 19th and 20th insts. he had for his guest Mr. John Campbell, of Quwhiffle township—gave us some interesting information concerning this old gentleman, so remarkable for his longevity and physical activity.

Mr. Campbell will be ninety-nine years of age on the 20th prox., and can still walk from ten to twelve miles a day. He has never married, never used tobacco, and has been throughout life a remarkably temperate man in all respects. He has been for thirty years a regular visitor at the home of Mr. McDuffie, the two having become warm friends in the latter's childhood, and Mr. Campbell looks as well as or better than he did ten years ago.

The old gentleman attributes his vigorous health to the excellent treatment that he receives at the hands of Mrs. L. A. Blue. This noble christian lady and her generous husband have taken Mr. Campbell to their home, proposing to care for and minister to his wants in the evening of his days. Happy the weary traveler, recipient of the unostentatious but hearty hospitality of this pleasant home, where well-fed servants and sleek mules and cattle, with well-filled cribs and barns, attest the thrifty management of the owner. Like Mr. L. A. Blue, his brothers are well-known for their liberality as well as success in worldly affairs—characteristics of their father before them.

Quwhiffle township has been long noted for the good health and longevity of its inhabitants; and Mr. Campbell says that Joe McKethan, colored, is 17 years older than he—being fully 116 years of age—and is even now the best basket-maker in the county. The walk to town and back the same day, a distance of 20 miles, is is only an ordinary at for Joe.

Your shoulders to the wheel and let's make the Centennial Celebration here in November such a success as will call forth the admiration of succeeding generations one hundred years hence.

Sad Bereavement.

The many friends of Mr. W. W. Holladay were shocked yesterday at the announcement of the death of his lovely and accomplished wife, who passed away at 11:30 o'clock in the forenoon at the residence of her father. The deceased lady was formerly Miss Maggie M. Williams, daughter of our esteemed citizen, Mr. Geo. W. Williams, and was aged 24 years and 25 days. Mr. Holladay was happy in a pleasant home, surrounded by a devoted and most excellent wife and two or three little children, and now that the ruthless hand of death has invaded his household many hearts go out to him in his bereavement.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, and the remains will be interred in Oakdale Cemetery.—Wilmington Messenger.

Many friends in Fayetteville sorrow with the bereaved husband and afflicted family of Mrs. Holliday—taken from earth in the bloom of beautiful womanhood. Much of her happy youth was passed in our midst, and this early sundering of the ties which bound her to a happy life has caused poignant grief in this community.

Not "An Empty Sound Signifying Nothing."

For a long time after the war—while from out the ruins of wasted properties and the ashes of our desolation we were gathering fragments of material here and there (floating spars from stranded ships) with which to rebuild the "waste places" and "make the rose to bloom in the desert"—the whirr of the machine shop and the smoke of the foundry were unknown within our borders. There were skilled artisans in our midst (the "dispersed abroad" from Harper's Ferry, as well as our own people "to the manor born"), but their sinewy arms and dædal hands were idle. Little by little, though, feeble industries lifted their heads; here a turning lathe was put up—here a little engine puffed and fumed—there a furnace hissed and glowed—until first the whistle of the railway shops called the force to work, and gave notice of the hour of rest; then followed, perhaps, Watson's, and the Novelty Works, and the Oil Mills, and Johnson's and the factories, and Sutton & Henzy's and the Bucket Factory, and the Furniture Factory, and others still—until now sunrise, noon and evening's close are each heralded by numerous whistles, of different notes and varying volume: all proclaiming the rapid increase of our material prosperity.

Carolina Roller Mills.

The Patent Process Roller Flour Mills—comprising capacious and convenient buildings, with a complete plant of most approved machinery—situated on Cross Creek, in the north-eastern suburbs of town, and erected in 1887 by Messrs. E. G. Styron & Co., have been purchased by Messrs. R. M. Nimocks, W. S. Cook, Q. K. Nimocks and others, who have incorporated themselves into the "Corolina Roller Mills and Supply Company."

The incorporators are intimately identified with the business interests of Fayetteville—prominent citizens, whose energy and public spirit make their impress upon the concerns of the community—and we greet with pleasure the inauguration of this new commendable enterprise, which is to increase the number of self-sustaining laborers and bread-winners, while it extends and improves our market for small grain.

It is designed to connect the mills with the Wilson Short-Cut R. R. by a branch track running through Moore and Lamont streets, and we hope that this great time and labor-saving annex to so important an industry may be completed with scrupulous care for the property interests of the citizens dwelling on the streets named.

The Business Steadily Increasing.

Handsome work they are turning out at the extensive Bucket Factory on Person street, and the huge packages every day conveyed thence to the depots, wharves and throughout the country prove the general appreciation of the excellent quality of the goods.

Churns, beautiful brass-bound water-buckets and heavy, excellently finished well-buckets are rapidly turned out to the music of swiftly revolving machinery on the lower floor, while on the second steady work, day in and day out, is required to prepare the requisite crates and frame-boxes for shipping the goods.

With the completion of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway to Wilmington, rendering accessible to this market additional supplies of valuable timber, the bucket factory will doubtles increase its operations.

Let every body hurrah for the Centennial Celebration here November 20, 21 and 22.

GRAND CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION,

In Fayetteville, November 20th, 21st and 22nd—Preparations on a Grand Scale—The Governors of the Thirteen Original States to Form an Attractive Feature—Fireworks and Other Attractions.

Interest in, and enthusiasm for, the grand Centennial Celebration here November 20th, 21st and 22nd gathers volume with each "rising and setting of the sun." From all parts of the State, and many States in the Union, people are expressing their intention to be with us on that grand and glorious occasion, and any thing between fifty and one hundred thousand people would be a low estimate.

The entire State Guard of North Carolina, 1,500 strong, is expected to participate in the exercises of the occasion, while several military companies from South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia will be present to do honor to the occasion and pay homage to that grand old chieftain and ex-President, Jefferson Davis, and North Carolinians, from the mountains to the seashore, will rally around him as they did in the days of '61.

The Governors of the thirteen original States, with their staff officers on horseback, will present a scene only once to be beheld in a life-time; and the fire-works on the night of the 21st will be by far the grandest pyrotechnic display ever witnessed south of Baltimore.

Hon. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, has been chosen Chief Marshal, and he will choose one assistant from each and every county in the State, in order that every section may be represented.

The Centennial Ball complimentary to Miss Winnie Davis, by the Centennial German Club, will be a grand affair and prove a very attractive feature of the Centennial.

Fall Trade.

The grain and forage crops of this section are now about all harvested, making a showing of good yields, and we are led to believe that cotton will be far better than was expected.

Fayetteville's fall trade has not opened with any feverish "boom," but it is in the main solid and satisfactory. The merchants were never better prepared to meet the varied wants of customers, both wholesale and retail, with every class of goods; their capacious stores are piled high with splendid stocks, and we shall demonstrate more clearly this season than ever that Fayetteville is the best market in North Carolina.

Of course the OBSERVER, with its high position as one of the leading and long-established journals of the State, constantly increasing its large subscription list, and eagerly read by all classes of people, is the medium through which the busines men of this city make their announcements to the public. Consult the OBSERVER in purchasing dry goods, groceries, etc.—in fact, in buying everything you may need or think you need.

Talk Centennial Celebration for November.

Weekly Cotton Report.

The following is the weekly report of the Fayetteville Cotton Market, taken from the office of the Fayetteville Cotton Exchange, for the week ending Sept. 25:

Receipts for the week	242
" last year	255
" date	371
Same time last year	335

Shipments for the week	150

REMARKS.

The market has been firm and prices, since our last issue, have advanced to 10¼ for middling, with proportionate advances for other grades. Our market has felt the decline of prices at the ports and is quoted quiet at quotations.

Pennsylvania manufacturers have drawn largely on the Fayetteville market for supplies and will continue to do throughout the season, which illustrates the importance of a system of classification in conformity with other Exchanges throughout the country.

Prices in the Fayetteville market for the past week have been the same as the prices paid in Wilmington, which is without a precedent at this season. This is largely due to the system adopted last year regulating the grades.

Keeping Pace with the Track-Laying.

This has been a "gaudy" season for railroad men; but the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company, which has suffered heavily from washouts and overflows, has shown extraordinary vim and energy in keeping up its line.

The construction of the iron bridge over the Cape Fear, under the supervision of contractor Normoyle, has been attended with great difficulties, but the coffer-dam, or caisson, has at length been fixed in position in the river, and the bridge will be ready for the track and the locomotive when they reach us.

A Moment, Please.

It is perfectly legitimate and nothing but right that new advertisements should constitute an attractive feature of a newspaper. We therefore call your personal attention to the new advertisements in this issue of McNeill & Co., J. B. Underwood, W. N. Tillinghast, C. W. Broadfoot, E. L. & A. J. Pemberton, Geo. M. Rose, Justin Nowell, W. M. Lockamy, Miss J. N. Tillinghast, Jas. R. Carter, Geo. Rosenthal and Miss Mallett (dress-making.)

Promoted.

Mr. W. S. Jeffries, who has been serving the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company efficiently for lo! these many months, has received his reward, and been promoted to baggage-master between Mt. Airy and Bennettsville.

IF I HAD THE TIME.

If I had the time to find a place
And sit me down full face to face
With my better self that stands no show
In my daily life that rushes so;
It might be then I would see my soul
Was stumbling still toward the shining goal—
I might be nerved by the thought sublime,
If I had the time!

If I had the time to let my heart
Speak out and take in my life a part,
To look about and stretch a hand
To a comrade quartered on no luck land;
Ah, God! If I might but just sit still
And hear the note of the whippoorwill,
I think that my wish with God would rhyme—
If I had the time!

If I had the time to learn from you
How much for comfort my word could do;
And I told you then of my sudden will
To kiss your feet when I did you ill—
If the tears aback of the bravado
Could force their way and let you know—
Brothers, the souls of us all would chime
If we had the time.

CORN AND FIELD PEAS.

The Most Profitable Way to Plant and Grow Them.

Brother Farmers:

I admit at the outset that you know how to plant, cultivate and grow corn and field peas, but I know from experience and observation that all of you do not know how to do these important things to your best interest.

Fifty years ago farmers were divided on this subject as they now are, but then more followed the right method than now, I think.

Experience and observation have confirmed me in the opinion that pea-waying is the best method, viz., that peas should be planted in the centre of the middle, between the corn rows—only one row of peas—and not between the hills of corn, or two rows of peas in the middle on each side of the centre of the middle.

I run off my corn rows seven feet distant, making the row to receive the corn as deep as two well plowed furrows—one in the other—can make it: in this deep furrow or trench I plant my corn three feet distant. At the right season I make a ridge in the centre, such as is generally made to sow cotton seed on, then open with cotton opener, planting the peas two feet apart, covering same with cotton coverer. I cultivate the peas with a cotton plow, keeping them on a ridge. As you will see, corn is 7 by 3 feet—peas 7 by 2 feet: this is 21 square feet to each hill of corn and 14 to each hill of peas—a small loss in square feet to the hill compared to the now general method of planting corn and peas, but in production the difference is considerably in favor of my method. A few important facts as to pea-waying—my plan: Peas will make more vine, bear more peas and commence fruiting several days earlier. Leaving the vines where they grew, you can the next year plant your corn where the peas grew and your peas where the corn grew: mark the difference in your corn the second year.

Better still, is to seed down rye in the fall on your corn land, then follow with peas broadcast, making five crops in three years, your land improving every year and your crops increasing in yield, and that, too, independent of a mortgage on your crops to pay a debt for stinking Yankee dirt. Do not forget this.

AN ADMONITION.

Save every thing carefully which you may grow on your farm this year, and store away for future use, after paying your debts; for the indications are that you will be able to use them next year to your great relief and comfort. Sell nothing that will aid you in carrying on your farming operations, unless absolute necessity require. Buy not a cent's worth of any thing which you can get along without. All Brother Farmers who have and to spare, aid some brother who is too poor to get on without help. "The poor ye have always."

Industry, frugality and economy—triple sisters, pointing to a plenty of this world's goods for this world's needs. Without them none can become rich, and with them few would be poor.

Sept. 12, '89. W. DREWRY SMITH.

Fattening Pork.

W. H. Yeomans in Southern Farm.]

It is generally claimed that the most satisfactory pork is produced from pigs fattened and slaughtered before they are a year old, but for purposes of economy and the use of waste material, pigs are wintered and the fattening carried on after they have attained considerable size.

If pigs are to be fattened, it is better to give such feed during their early growth as will develop the frame, make bone, and give a suitable foundation upon which to build in the fattening process. Such feed may consist of skim milk, house slops, etc., with which is mixed a small quantity of fine feed. This seems to be a suitable food for bodily development, which becomes a necessity if the best results are desired.

There is probably no better material for fattening pork than corn meal. It is preeminently a fat producer, and for that reason the feeding of it should not be too heavy with young animals, unless it is mixed with albumenoid material, and substance for the development of a bony structure that can sustain the fat.

We practice mixing the meal with water and slops instead of cooking it as formerly. Our thoughts were turned in this direction by experiments at the different stations of the country, and we are satisfied that the results are fully as good as by the old course which involved more trouble. The practice pursued by some of mixing grains in grinding for hogs, such as corn, oats, rye, buckwheat, etc., may serve a good purpose to use in limited quantities during the entire period of growth, for the reason that it contains all the elements necessary for the development of muscle and bone. But in producing pork our idea is not so much to secure lean pork, but fat; if lean meat was the sole aim, then the character of the food would be entirely changed. Pork is not all of it produced for the meat, but for the fat that is now so extensively employed in the culinary department, and for that reason there is little danger of getting pork too fat. When there is danger in that line there is no trouble in producing a change, as feeding experiments have abundantly proven.

A Large Estate.

A broad land is this in which we live, dotted so thickly with thrifty cities, towns and villages! Amid them all, with ever-increasing popularity and helpfulness, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, giving hope and cheer where there is disease and despair. Wherever there is humanity there is suffering; wherever there is suffering there is the best field for this greatest American Remedy. Consumption (which is lung-scrofula) yields to it, if employed in the early stages of the disease; Chronic Nasal Catarrh yields to it; Kidney and Liver diseases yield to it! If you want the best known remedy for all diseases of the blood, ask for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and take no other. It is guaranteed to cure in all cases of diseases for which it is recommended, or money refunded.
